Grossman, Piqued, Says He'll Resign

Is On Way to Albany—Mrs. Moskowitz "Unofficial State Official" Says Commissioner Greene.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, March 10.—Lowell Grossman of Poughkeepsie, who was demoted on Saturday from the post of state commissioner of highways by Col. Frederick Stuart Greene, state superintendent of public works, was expected in Albany this afternoon to hand in his resignation.

Grossman is reported to be on his way to Albany to quit the highway department. Colonel Greene said he expected "action" later in the day. Grossman has announced from his home in Poughkeepsie that he would resign.

With John H. Ruber, engineer in charge of grade crossing elimination, Grossman was demoted by Colonel Greene for alleged misuse of a state automobile which had been assigned to the colonel's personal use. The colonel's car figured in an accident on the night of March 4. Grossman has denied that he was in the machine at the time or that he had anything to do with ordering the chauffeur to take it out of the garage.

When questioned today, Colonel Greene admitted that on several occasions he had "loaned" the car to Mrs. Henry M. Moskowitz, of New York, who is regarded at the capital as one of Governor Smith's advisers. "I consider Mrs. Moskowitz an unofficial state official and contend that it was within my power to loan her the machine," declared Colonel Greene.

Colonel Greene admitted that last fall he permitted Mrs. Moskowitz to take the car to Williamstown, Mass. Mrs. Moskowitz has a son who is a student at Williams College.

In admitting he used the machine to have himself and friends driven to the theatre on numerous occasions, Colonel Greene said:

"It makes a difference who orders the car taken from the garage. I feel I have a perfect right to use the machine whenever I want to because it is assigned to my personal use."

Lottery Machines And Punch Boards

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, March 10.—While public attention has been centered upon the thousand and one "sensations" incident to the naval oil investigation, the campaign managers of Calvin Coolidge have been working with a quiet efficiency that has resulted to date in the acquisition of nearly 200 delegates to the Cleveland convention in advance of the primary battles.

Three months from today the Republicans meet at Cleveland to nominate and the Coolidge managers are so confident as a result of their preliminary work and surveys that they have informed the president it will be "simply a ratification meeting."

Up to today six states have instructed their delegates for Coolidge—Virginia, Kentucky, Iowa, South Carolina, Louisiana and Minnesota. By the end of this week four more states will have joined this list, the Coolidge managers claimed today. There are New Hampshire, Kansas, Colorado and Mississippi. The grand total of delegate strength from these ten states is 184.

The president will receive his first primary endorsement tomorrow in New Hampshire. Senator Hiram Johnson of California, the only avowed opponent of Coolidge, has not entered in the state, and consequently the president will have no opposition there. All of the delegates have announced themselves for Coolidge save one—Senator George H. Moses. Inasmuch as Senator Moses is accounted the original Coolidge man there is little doubt of his position, even though not formally declared.

There will be no real test of Senator Johnson's strength until March 25, when the Coolidge and Johnson candidates come to grips in South Dakota.

The Coolidge managers are somewhat doubtful of South Dakota. Senator Johnson has been concentrating on the South Dakota fight and has been aided to a large extent by Senator Peter Norbeck. A victory for Johnson there would be the first real setback experienced by the Coolidge managers, and by the same token it would give the Johnson candidacy a pronounced boost in other primary states where the Californian has elected to give battle.

The next twelve weeks are to be filled with political battling. New Hampshire leads off in the primary list tomorrow. North Dakota follows on March 18, South Dakota on the 25th and then the candidates swing into a hectic April in which the rival candidates meet Wisconsin votes on April 1, Michigan on April 7, Illinois and Nebraska on the 8th, Oregon on the 18th, Pennsylvania and New Jersey on the 22nd and Ohio and Massachusetts on the 29th.

Appropriation Bill of State

In Legislature Tonight—Total Expected to be About $160,000,000, in Excess of Last Year's.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, March 10.—The annual appropriation bill is expected to be introduced in both houses of the legislature tonight. Clerks attached to both the senate and assembly finance committees were still at work on the figures today, but said they hoped to have the bill ready for introduction tonight.

While the exact figures will not be known until the various special appropriations and the departmental appropriations have been tabulated, it was estimated today by representatives on the finance committee that the total would be in excess of last year's $156,000,000. The total is expected to be near the $160,000,000 mark, without counting the $12,500,000 that will be appropriated from the bond issue approved by the voters last fall for improvements in state hospitals.

Friends of Governor Smith declared today that he is planning to hold the special appropriation bills "down to the bone." The governor, they say, will not approve the spending of any more of the taxpayers' money than is absolutely necessary for the support of the state government.

There will be two important hearings at the capitol tomorrow, one in the enabling act to permit cities to function under the home rule amendment adopted at the last election and the other on a score of bills in which representatives of organized labor are vitally interested. Mayor Hylan of New York city, as well as scores of other city officials, are expected at the home rule hearing.

On Wednesday there will be a hearing on the Republican and Democratic water power bills. Speaker Machold, the Republican leader of the assembly, and Governor Smith are deadlocked on water power development. As a result two measures have been introduced. The assembly is expected to pass the Republican bill, while the same procedure will be followed with regard to the Democratic bill in the upper house. The hearing, however, will be the first "out in the open" fight on water power at the present session.

Many important measures will be acted upon in the senate this week if everyone of the 26 Democratic senators are present. Proceedings in the upper house last week were delayed by the illness of Senator Mark W. Allen of Staten Island.

Several of the governor's bills, already passed by the Democratic senate, may come up for disposition in the Republican assembly this week.

Stake All on Poincare's Plan

His Cabinet Decides to Stand or Fall on Chamber's Monetary Stabilization Scheme—Depends on How France Behaves.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, March 10.—In a three hours session the French cabinet today unanimously approved Premier Poincare's policy of staking the present government's fate upon the financial reform measures adopted by the chamber, which are now under examination by the senate finance committee. Rejection of vital parts of these measures will lead to immediate resignation by the cabinet.

As the measures are discussed in committee and the senate the premier will call for votes of confidence from time to time to determine the trend of opinion.

Premier Poincare has the full support of President Millerand.

The premier has threatened to resign as a result of the senate finance committee's antagonism, but, according to Paris edition of the London Daily Mail, the president will refuse to accept it.

Poincare is insisting upon the right to issue economy decrees but from present appearances the senate finance committee will reject this demand.

In the event of rejection President Millerand may convene a general assembly consisting of the chamber of deputies and the senate at Versailles, calling upon this body to revise the national constitution investing the government with dictatorial powers to clear up the financial situation.

Members of the government and banking institutions are alarmed over the collapse of the franc although members of the senate do not appear worried. Despite frantic demands of the cabinet for speed they are taking their time in debating measures to restore the franc.

If the senate committee fails to give the premier power to take steps to bolster the value of French currency the chamber of deputies may be dissolved and a general election held immediately, according to the Paris edition of the London Daily Mail. It is believed in some quarters that if a newly elected chamber approves Poincare's program the senate will be forced by public opinion to fall in line.

The senate finance committee is meeting continuously. It will report Thursday, according to present plans.

To Mark Civil War Vets' Graves

Secretary of Sons of Veterans Camp Asks For Information As Regards To Unmarked Graves.

Tapen Camp, No. 1, Sons of Veterans is making up the list of "Civil War veterans' graves in Ulster County which are not marked with memorial markers. If any friends or relative knowing of a veteran's grave which is not marked, will send the veteran's name, regiment and company in which he served, to Joy A. Rosa, secretary, 8 Barmann avenue, Tapen Camp will endeavor to see that markers be placed or furnished for each grave. Last year the names of many came in so late that the Camp was unable to secure enough markers in time for Memorial Day.

Start Daugherty Trial Tuesday

Bids Fair to Attract More Interest Than Teapot Dome Scandal—John Camp A Star Witness.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, March 10.—Plans for the "public trial" of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty on charges of neglect of duty were completed today by a special senate committee.

The first public session, scheduled for tomorrow, will be devoted to evidence linking the department of justice with an alleged conspiracy to foment revolution in Mexico, according to Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, acting prosecutor. Daugherty, who has denied all charges against his honor and integrity, will be represented at the hearings by personal counsel.

The Daugherty investigation probably will steal the spotlight of interest from the Teapot Dome inquiry because of its tremendous political significance. Its sponsors were men who are alleged to have in their possession evidence of the sensational nature and they have promised a series of thrills.

Three phases of the investigation were expected to be brought out today. They were:

1. Summoning of seven former department of justice agents to tell of an alleged conspiracy, involving former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, E. L. Doheny, Harry F. Sinclair and other oil interests, to foment the unsuccessful Establan Cantu revolt in Lower California in 1921 and 1922. Several of these former agents have charged that the department of justice suppressed their efforts to arrest the alleged conspirators and ordered the release of confiscated munitions destined for the Mexican rebels.

2. Investigation of a story that General Leonard Wood was offered the support of Jake Hamon, at the 1920 Chicago convention if he would name Hamon secretary of interior, if elected. Leonard Wood, Jr., and a dozen of Daugherty's bitterest political foes are to be subpoenaed to determine whether Hamon made the same offer to Daugherty, while he acted as campaign manager for the late President Harding.

3. Investigation of charges that high government officials gambled on the stock market on the strength of "leaks" from the White House. This phase was prompted by a Chicago grand jury, which investigated the veterans bureau but reported it had found evidence of speculation by one or more officials of the government wherein it has been asserted official information was used for purposes of speculation.

4. Alleged sale of paroles also charged by the Chicago grand jury and said to have involved members of congress.

In addition, the investigating committee has summoned Gus Jonas chief of the department of justice agents on the Mexican border, to inquire into reports that he interviewed John Camp, a Mexican secret service operative, after the latter was called as a committee witness. The committee looked upon Camp as one of its "star" witnesses in the alleged revolt conspiracy and were anxious to learn whether any effort was made to prevent him testifying.

HURLEY WILL VOTE ON NEW BRIDGE WEDNESDAY

A special election of the legal voters of the town of Hurley will be held on Wednesday at the town hall at Old Hurley, for the purpose of voting on the proposition to raise $15,000 for the construction of a new bridge to replace the present bridge crossing the Esopus creek at Old Hurley village. The bridge connects the Kingston road with the Hurley Mountain and Lomontville roads.

Lord Says Bill Will Pass.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, March 10.—A bill calling for a state tax of one cent a gallon on gasoline will be passed by the Republican assembly, according to Assemblyman Bert Lord, of Chenango. Such a tax should not the state about $6,300,000 a year, Mr. Lord says. Several futile attempts have been made at previous sessions of the Legislature to pass a bill imposing a tax on gasoline.

Irish Mutiny Leaders Escape

Order Restored in Tipperary But "Insurgents" Have Sympathy of Many Able Men.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Dublin, March 10.—Despite a 48 hour search, Major General Liam Tobin and Colonel Charles Dalton, alleged ringleaders in the attempted Free State army mutiny were still at large this afternoon.

Order has been restored in County Tipperary where soldiers seized arms and ammunition and fled into the hills when ordered to demobilize.

Although the government declares the situation is not serious, it is known that some of the country's ablest military men are sympathetic toward the "insurgents." The "insurgent" group is opposed to reduction and reorganization of the army and also object to the way the Anglo-Irish treaty is being administered.

Blue Laws Agitate Jersey

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Jersey City, N. J., March 10.—Twenty thousand cases for alleged violations of the New Jersey Sunday blue laws will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow and whole indictments are expected.

According to a statute enacted in 1798 the only activities permitted on Sunday are the making of newspapers, riding in carriages and the delivery of milk. Police listed 3,610 violations in Jersey City alone Sunday and 1,500 in Bayonne. Most of them were for places open for business such as restaurants, gasoline stations, laundries, theaters, candy stores, religious performances for which admission was charged and school entertainments.

All forms of amusement are tabooed under the quaint statute and playing marbles, rollins hoops, listening to radio, playing tag and playing pianos will be taken up next Sunday, police assert. Yesterday's dragnet only included places open in violation of the laws, as there were not enough policemen to report every act of amusement.

Among the flagrant violation of the laws discovered, were power houses running full blast, workmen busy in gas and electric light plants, telegraph offices, telephone exchanges functioning, messenger boys delivering messages.

Only one train a day on the railroads is permitted by the law. There were many trains running.

UNION LEADER IS SHOT TO DEATH IN NEW JERSEY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Elizabeth, N. J., March 10.—Paul Veneziano, chairman of a local hod carriers' union, was shot to death early today as he alighted from an automobile driven by Louis Bona, a friend. Seven bullets penetrated his heart.

Bona was taken into custody as a material witness. He told police that he was taking Veneziano home after a party at Bona's home. He said that as he slowed up to allow Veneziano to alight from the car two men, standing a few feet away, opened fire.

Bona declares he pursued the slayers but they escaped.

NEW ENFORCEMENT ACT IN ASSEMBLY TONIGHT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, March 10.—A bill calling for the state-wide dry enforcement law, to take the place of the Mullan-Gage law repealed during the closing hours of the 1923 session, is expected to be introduced in the assembly tonight. The measure was drafted by a committee of the District Attorneys' Association of the state. It eliminates double jeopardy, but provides for search and seizure of liquor without a warrant. A dry enforcement bill has been introduced in the upper house by Senator Knight, Republican.

LEADBEATER A LEADER AT FORESTRY COLLEGE.

John C. Leadbeater, Milton, was among those honorably mentioned for high standing by Dean Moon of the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse University, at convocation of the entire student body recently.

Leadbeater's scholastic standing averaged 80.50 for all subjects during the last semester. This record entitled him to a place on the honor list of students.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, March 10.—"I have not only never aided revolutionists in Mexico but have loaned the Obregon government $5,000,000 to aid in putting down rebellions."

This answer was made today by E. L. Doheny, president of the Pan-American Petroleum Company, to the charges of Senator Wheeler, Democrat, that Doheny, Harry F. Sinclair and other oil magnates, with the aid of the United States department of justice, had "fomented revolution in Mexico."

Doheny called Wheeler "a senatorial liar" and "a political mistake far more fit to sit in the Soviet parliament of Moscow than in the senate of the United States."

"Senator Wheeler's statement as reported in the press that he expects to show that I, in connection with others, furthered revolution against the Obregon government in Mexico is absolutely false," Doheny said.

"It is just as false as his previous statement of February 19 that Harry Sinclair, Edward B. McLean and I had meetings in the apartment of Attorney General Daugherty."

"On February 19, Wheeler made on the floor of the senate his statement that there had been meetings between Sinclair, McLean and myself. He was immediately informed of the falsity of his statement."

"The Walsh-Leandro committee was called upon to subpoena and make them either prove his statement or retract it as it would have done in the case of any private citizen."

"Three courses were open to Senator Wheeler:

"1. If he were truthful and honorable to come before the committee and prove his assertions.

"2. If he were mistaken and a man of any courage, to come before the committee and retract his falsehood.

"3. If he were a liar and a coward to let his falsehood stand."

Wheeler chose the "latter course," Doheny said.

"I call him a senatorial liar and he accepts the imputation," he declared.

The charges that he aided revolt in Mexico were made by Wheeler "with like reckless disregard of truth," Doheny said.

"I denounce this charge as equally and unqualifiedly false," declared Doheny. "They are obviously false for three reasons."

"1. I would have been a fool to finance gun runners in Mexico.

"2. I have actually loaned the Obregon government $5,000,000 which enabled it to put down the revolution.

"3. Because Wheeler has said it."

Two Men Hurt While at Work

George Lifer of No. 47 Delaware avenue, who is employed by the concern erecting the gas tanks for the Newcomb Oil Corporation at Kingston Point, was injured while at work today. He was hurried to the Kingston City Hospital, where it was found he had sustained lacerations of the scalp. After having his wounds dressed he was taken to his home. How the accident occurred was not ascertained.

John Reichert of No. 190 Tremper avenue, employed at the Barth plant on Grand street, cut his finger quite severely while at work this morning. He was conveyed to the Kingston City Hospital where the wound was dressed and he later returned to his home.

LOCAL FIRE DEPARTMENT SAVED PLATBUSH BARN.

The local fire department this morning received a telephone call for a barn fire on the old Costello farm on the Flatbush road, about half a mile outside the city limits, to which they responded and were able to get the fire under control with the use of chemicals. The farm had been rented by Ward Nichols, who had rented the barn to a Mr. Basch of this city, who kept 11 cows and five horses in the structure. Through the assistance of neighbors the animals were gotten out safely and the fire was held under control until the firemen arrived, by a bucket brigade who threw pails of water on the flames. The fire started in the cattle barn and ran up the siding to the hay mow and communicated to the roof. The firemen were forced to cut a hole eight feet square in the roof to get at the flames. The damage to the structure is covered by insurance.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FAIRYLAND FROLIC

"I must have a party—a frolic," said the Queen of the Fairies. "I have been feeling like one for some time now."

"Spring is in the air and it is just the time for a dance and a springtime supper and gaiety and laughter."

So the Queen of the Fairies asked the Breeze Brothers to take around her invitations. She invited Witty Witch and Old Mr. Giant, the Bogey Family and the Olaf family, the Brownies and the Elves, the Gnomes and every one of the little Fairyland people.

After the Breeze Brothers had been gone for a little while the Queen of the Fairies began to plan for her party.

And then, in a short time, the Breeze Brothers came back.

"Well," said the Queen of the Fairies, "I do hope my guests accepted."

"Everyone of them," said the Breeze Brothers. "We did not have a refusal."

"That's splendid," the Queen of the Fairies cried, and then she thanked the Breeze Brothers for taking around her invitations for her. As she thanked them she shared with them some of the early blossoms which Mistress Springtime had given to her.

The Breeze Brothers took the blossoms up into the air with them. Some they scattered in one place, some in another and as they flew through the air with their springtime gifts the air seemed to be filled with the sweetest of perfume.

The day soon arrived for the Queen of the Fairies' party.

And right on time were all the guests.

They had all dressed in their best for the party, too.

Old Mr. Giant wore a costume of pale green which was very becoming to him, and his great height looked very smart and fine.

Witty Witch wore a lovely shawl made of purple violets.

The other Fairies were dressed in costumes made of yellow violets.

The Elves wore little suits of trailing arbutus flowers hidden partly by leaves.

The Olaf family wore dresses of cherry blossoms and the Bogey family wore dresses of dogwood blossoms.

The Brownies had made their suits of little crocus flowers, and the Gnomes had made theirs of early spring hyacinths.

You see all the Fairyland people had their own big springtime garden so they had lots and lots of flowers, for the flowers loved to bloom for the great springtime party of the Queen of the Fairies.

And then the frolic began. There were races and there were games, and there were dances. And the Fairy Orchestra with Fairy Ybab leading played most beautiful music, while the Woodpeckers kept time.

The supper was one of Fairyland's best. There was early spring salad and fresh brook water and moss ice cream.

After the supper was over everyone joined in the great festival dance.

In the center of the Woodland Fairyland playground there was a huge pole, and from the pole were many different streamers of different colors.

Each little guest took one of these and, dancing around the pole, they sang the song of the Queen of the Fairies had made up in honor of the occasion.

Everyone had been given a little birchbark book with the words of the song written in it, and this was the song they sang:

"Springtime in Fairyland,
Glorious and grand,
Springtime for everyone too,
All over the land!"

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE

For a change from the ordinary bread the following will be liked:

Southern Grist Bread.

—Mash until smooth one cupful of cold, well-cooked hominy. Into this stir one well-beaten egg, one tablespoonful of lard, a little salt, one cupful of milk, and lastly one pint of uncooked hominy.

Spread this in a well-greased baking pan and bake half an hour. Cut into squares and serve hot with butter.

Apple Sauce Cake.—Take one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, one cupful of thick unsweetened apple sauce, one cupful of raisins, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, a teaspoonful of soda and one-fourth teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Mix and bake slowly in a moderate oven.

Sponge Bananas.—Cover the bottom of a baking dish with small sponge cakes or with pieces of cake, cover with a layer of bananas, sprinkle with sugar, the juice of an orange, chopped nuts or coconut. Bake fifteen minutes, serve with a custard or thick cream.

Chicken, Mississippi Style.—Pass through a meat chopper one-fourth of a pound each of fresh veal and pork, two slices of bacon, the liver of a chicken, half a green pepper, two sprigs of parsley, a teaspoonful of scraped onion, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne; mix all well and use to stuff a chicken. Bake often and cook in a hot oven until tender. Serve with sweet potatoes.

Cranberry Bavarian Cream.—Wash a quart of cranberries and put to cook; while hot press through a sieve. To one pint of pulp add one-half cupful of sugar. Soak a quarter of a box of gelatin in one-quarter of a cupful of water and dissolve over hot water, then add to the berries. Turn into a bowl and beat until cold and beginning to thicken, then add one-half cupful of rich milk and beat again. Lastly add one cupful of thick whipped cream. Beat well and mold.

Shady.

Shady, March 7.—One of the oldest residents of this place, J. T. Miller, celebrated his 88 birthday Monday, March 3rd, with a number of his friends and neighbors, who called at his home in the afternoon. He received a shower of very beautiful birthday cards and booklets from neighbors. His daughter, Mrs. J. B. Hoyt, brought him a very delicious birthday cake, which was cut and served to the guests. A cousin, Mrs. Oscar Howland presented him with a very pretty decorated birthday cake and also ice cream, which he appreciated very much. He extends his thanks to all who took part in giving him a happy birthday surprise.

Toast—the Breakfast Delight

Who can resist the fragrant aroma of Bread toasting?
Who wants to?

Toast is a national institution in America. In thousands of homes toast is served every day. Because Bread is the most wholesome and palatable of all foods. And toasting Bread even improves it.

Mrs. Salzmann's Mother's Bread

—makes toast you can't resist or forget. Toast that makes you hunt for a reason to serve it for dinner as well as breakfast.

And the best reasons for serving toast are found in its wholesomeness and tastiness for every member of the family.

Toast possesses all the virtues of Bread, Best of all Foods.

Finns Likely to Win Olympiad

Have Long Lead Now and Several Coming Events are Conceded Them.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, March 10.—Storm signals are flying off the coast of France against the coming of the American Olympic track and field team, according to a friendly tip passed along today for what it might be worth by Harry Kaskey, Chicago speed skater and member of the Olympic winter sports team. The latter met a more or less unanimous defeat at Chamonix and Kaskey intimated that the legacy might very well prove a most unwelcome burden for the remaining American teams at the Paris games.

Finland, he said, is stronger in track and field than early reports would seem to indicate. We have merely heard of the stars here and nothing of the near stars who can and possibly will pick up the odd points in second and third places.

"The stories that have come to America about the Finns have dealt only with Nurmi, Ritola, Parola and other big names," Kaskey said. "According to what was told me abroad both Finland and Sweden have developed in the last year young athletes almost as capable as the stars. Finland alone has what it considers a team capable of winning any Olympiad and you don't want to forget that the Finns are off to a long lead as a result of the winter sports competition. Considering the distance our men must travel and the lack of time for adequate preparation on the other side, I wouldn't want to bet too much money on the chances of an American victory."

Speaking of betting Kaskey added that Europeans, even the Finns, were not disposed when discussing Olympic possibilities to say it with currency. It seemed to be a case of "we have no money" since everyone he spoke to appeared to be quietly confident of the issue but stopped short of financial expression. The feeling against another American victory was none too enthusiastic, he said.

"The track and field team and the swimmers should be given six weeks abroad before the start of the games," Kaskey declared. "Our skaters should have had two months because of the early start of the winter sports and the great difference between American and continental speed skating."

"The best proof of the time needed for conditioning in a foreign land is found in the refusal of one of the Finns, who won the Olympic individual title, to come here for the championships unless he was given six weeks for preparation here. At that, he was in perfect condition when the offer was made."

THE WEEK AT RONDOUT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

About fifteen young folks from the Sunday school united with the church at the Communion service Sunday morning at the Rondout Presbyterian Church. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Ellis, preached a stirring sermon taking as his topic "Three Witnesses."

The annual congregational dinner will be held Thursday evening in the chapel of the church. The speaker of the evening will be the Rev. A. J. Dean, D. D., of Utica, who is said to be a witty after dinner speaker. Music will be rendered by Zucca's orchestra. The dinner is for every member of the congregation and will be free.

Next Sunday the annual Every Member canvass will be held to raise the amount necessary to carry on the work of the church for the year.

Finds Her "Dead" Baby in Blackmail Plot.

After the World War, when she was a nurse with the British Army in Flanders, Miss Mazie Dring came to America to marry an American she had met in France. He deserted her when he learned she was to become a mother, and she gave her baby to a Chicago woman, who later told her it was dead. Recently attorneys for Joseph Baum, wealthy Kansas City, Mo., banker, informed her the baby was alive and was being used to attempt to blackmail Baum. Miss Dring has her baby back and the police are seeking the other woman.

Two Eskimos Are Executed

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 10.—Far north of civilization two Eskimos have paid penalty of civilians for murder, according to the executioner who arrived here today from Herschel Island in the Arctic Ocean. They were hanged for the murder of Corporal Doak of the Mounted Police, and Otto Blinder, a white trader. Sergeant Thorne of the Mounted Police, who sprung the trap that sent the Eskimos to their death, said they died without sign of fear or remorse and made speeches from the scaffold declaring the Mounted Police were enemies of their people. They were Alik Omiak and Esquimo Tetamangna.

NOT ENOUGH ATTENTION PAID TO TRIMMINGS.

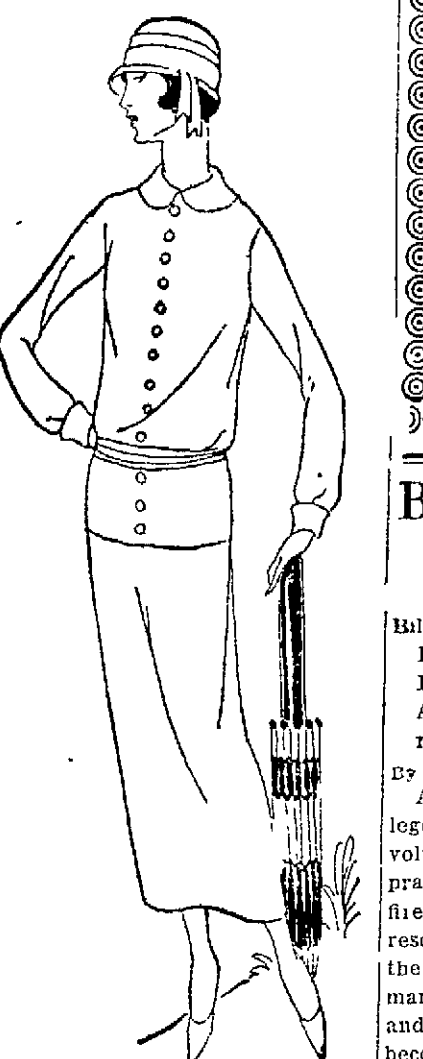

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

We are constantly being lectured as to silhouette and fabric, and often left to our own devices on the subject of trimmings. True, the boyish tendency often eliminates trimmings with but exception, the humble pearl button raised now by popular acclaim to a most exalted rank. The traditional coster must be in the seventh heaven of delight over the game of "button, button, who has the button?" which dress-makers and tailors are frantically playing. So lavishly are buttons being applied just now that a shortage is feared.

It is not an uncommon thing to find almost overlapping rows of buttons edging a frock and buttons of the very small flat pearl types are used as one would employ bead embroidery.

A white crepe suit with red chiffon velvet collar employed buttons as an embellishment together with silver thread embroidery. So far, the approved button is plain, but probably ere long, we will use every possible effort to find buttons which are as lovely as jewels and almost as costly.

Another trimming which has reappeared, is flat silk braid of the Hercules type used on a black velour coat. A white Hercules braid was covered with a perforated design, which showed black beneath, the cutaway sections being buttonholed. With the world gone mad on the subject of Roman striped effects, such braids are naturally prominent among the spring trimmings.

Bill for State Fire College

Bill Now Before Legislature To Establish Practical Instruction In Fire Prevention And Fighting Among Volunteer And Paid Firemen.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

A bill to establish a state fire college, for instructing members of the volunteer or paid fire department in practical methods of fire prevention, fire fighting, fire protection and rescue work, has been introduced in the assembly by Assemblyman Forman E. Whitcomb of Broome county, and a number of local firemen have become interested in the passage of the bill, which has the endorsement of Fire Chief Rodney A. Chipp.

The state fire college would be under the jurisdiction of three commissioners, to be appointed by the governor, and a secretary, to be appointed by the commissioners. The commissioners would serve without compensation, but commissioners and secretary would be entitled to their reasonable and necessary traveling expenses. The secretary would receive a salary.

One or more sessions of the state fire college would be held in each year at such place or places and of such duration as the commissioners should determine. Any city, village, town or fire district would be entitled to send to each session of the fire college two candidates, for instruction, who would be selected from the regularly enlisted, volunteer or paid firemen, whose necessary traveling and hotel expenses would become a charge against the city, village, town or fire district, as the case might be. Appointments of candidates would be made by the mayor of a city, village trustees or supervisor of a town, except that they would be made on recommendation of fire commissioners in any city, village, town or fire district.

Instruction in the fire college would include practical instruction in modern methods of fire prevention, inspection, use and care of fire fighting apparatus, equipment and facilities including proper housing of the same, most approved methods of fighting fires, protection of property and rescue of animals and persons threatened by fire including the use of the ladder, life belt, safety-net and other safety appliances, first aid to the injured including resuscitation with and without the aid of a pulmotor, and in such other subjects relating to the duties of a fireman as the commission may prescribe. Instruction would be by means of lectures or otherwise, and may be accompanied by the use of apparatus and equipment, which the commissioners of the college would be authorized to acquire by gift, loan or purchase.

A person appointed commissioner of the fire college must have had practical experience as a fireman or in the administration of a fire department. The terms of the commissioners would be for three years each except the commissioners first appointed would be for terms of one, two and three years respectively. The principal office would be at Albany, but the commissioners would be authorized to divide the state into two or more districts for the purpose of holding sessions of the college.

The bill has the endorsement of the association of fire chiefs of New York state and various firemen's associations and of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The bill now before the legislature passed the 1923 assembly without question but was killed in the senate finance committee. Firemen and others who favor the establishment of the state fire college are urged to write to that effect to Senator Bouton, Assemblyman Van Wagenen, Senator James J. Walker, temporary president of the senate; Senator Bernard Downing, chairman of the senate finance committee, and also to send their personal comments to Assemblyman Whitcomb. Letters should be addressed to the legislators mentioned at Albany.

TIGERS HAVE CHANCE TO THE CORNELL FIVE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 10.—As a result of the decision to replay the protested Princeton-Dartmouth game this week, the Tigers have a chance to tie the Cornell for the championship in the intercollegiate basketball league, it developed today. Princeton still has three games to play, Cornell one. In order to get a tie, Princeton must defeat Dartmouth in the play-off on Thursday and Cornell on Saturday, followed by a victory in its final contest next week. If Cornell wins on Saturday the race will be ended.

My Secrets

Of beauty are yours now, if you wish

By Edna Wallace Hopper.

I made myself a famous beauty, and that beauty brought me glory. I have kept that beauty to a grand old age. After 40 years in the limelight, I still look a girl of 19.

These facts are due to helps I found through years of world-wide searching. They are, I believe, the best beauty helps in existence. No one I know has, in other ways, attained any like results.

So I have had these helps prepared and placed where all may get them. And I hope to see them bring to millions, the benefits I got.

Just four will do. These beauty helps comprise 32 different factors. But great experts have combined them in four preparations. And all are sold at modest prices which every girl and woman can afford.

One is my White Youth Clay. A clean, refined clay, vastly more efficient than ordinary clays. A clay perfected by French experts through 20 years of scientific study.

My White Youth Clay brings a new complexion, rosy, clear and clean. It combats all lines and wrinkles. No woman who once tries it will ever go without it. It costs 50 cents and $1.

Youthful bloom. My Youth Cream is a cold cream like nothing else you know. It contains tains products of both lemon and strawberry. French experts have embedded in it the best skin helps they know.

Apply it after the clay. Also use it as a night cream, also dusts as a powder base. Keep it over on the skin to feed and whiten, firm, soften and protect. The price is 65 cents.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser, now used by leading beauty experts the world over. It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. And the dirt and refuse nothing else can reach comes with it. Great beauty experts charge $3 for it. Mine sells for 75 cents.

The hair you envy. My glorious hair is due to my Hair Youth. It is heavy, silky, lustreous, and grows finer every year. Falling hair, dandruff and gray hairs are unknown to me.

My Hair Youth is applied with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. If the hair must be hair. It keeps the scalp like a well kept garden where hair roots can flourish. It costs 60 cents and $1 with eye dropper.

All druggists and toilet counters supply these preparations, exactly as I use them. My Beauty book comes with each. They will bring you rich rewards. If you want more beauty, longer youth, these are the means, a science known to get them. This is Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 10, 1924

THE PINCHOT EXTRA OATH.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania exacts from all his appointees in addition to the usual oath of office to support the Constitution and the laws, a personal pledge to "obey the eighteenth amendment and all State and national laws to give it effect." There were faithful prohibitionists who thought this over-zealous and unwelcome, and these will be confirmed in their opinion now that an honored citizen has declined reappointment rather than take the required pledge. In his refusal, John M. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, for twenty years a member of that body and distinguished for his service in the conservation of the State's wild life, thus expressed himself:

By doing what you ask I would not only lose the respect of the sportsmen, but, what means far more to me, I would lose my own self-respect. I will not subscribe to an oath before God and then belittle it by promising any human being that I will keep it.

In response to criticism, Governor Pinchot says Mr. Phillips is the one at fault—"he, in fact, turned me down"—which evades the question as to the Governor's right to single out any particular amendment or law and require an already sworn official to pledge himself to obey that especially. Such a policy not only implies distrust of the appointee, inevitably offending him if he be a man of honor, but betrays a motive that looks toward political effect. Governor Pinchot may think he is forwarding his own political fortunes by the extra oath he exacts, but no reflecting observer will concede that he is advancing the cause of prohibition itself.

EXCHANGING COMPLIMENTS.

College students seem to be regarded as utterly hopeless cases by Dr. Albert Parker Pitch, formerly professor of the history of religion at Amherst and now of Chicago University. "Religion means nothing to them," he says, and his further indictment reads in part as follows: "They are dull because they won't study—they think they were sent to college to make money or to get married. They drink because their communities disregard the Volstead law. They play cards because they think it is the social spirit of the times. They have no religion. They are unmoral. They swear like pirates because their vocabularies are so limited they have no other means of expression."

Whatever the sins of college students, and doubtless in some cases they are many—although getting married, making money and playing cards for amusement are not usually listed among the serious offenses—it is probable that they are not as dull as Dr. Pitch seems determined to believe. Some of them, according to report, are of the opinion that the Dr. Pitches, and to a large extent the Protestant churches generally, have dropped religion in favor of prohibition, becoming "mere prohibition societies." However unjust, one-sided or wickedly rebellious this may be, the however provocative of further denunciation, it indicates a certain watchfulness of observation and power of reflection which can not be associated with, and is quite too much to expect of, the hopelessly dull mind.

The Chancellor of the British Exchequer declares that payments on the British debt to the United States have not prejudiced trade between the two countries. Here is an item of news that our cancellationists should ponder. Before the debt settlement was entered into, we were assured by those gentlemen that it was an economic impossibility for European countries to settle their obligations to America in gold. Yet Great Britain is making regular payments in gold, or in Liberty Bonds which is the same thing, without the slightest disturbance to trade.

Assemblyman Westbrook has introduced a bill regulating auto truck lights that is one of the most thorough examples of mischievous meddling and general lack of sane thought or reasoning that has appeared in a long time. The bill provides that in addition to the ordinary lights now required by law every truck shall display "at least two lighted lamps on the front of such vehicle, one of which lamps shall be red and the other green." Just "at least two" more lamps—nothing to forbid a whole row of them—and one (no matter which one) must be red and the other green. The effect of a red light on the front of a truck would be to make it seem to be going when it was really coming, so that the driver of any vehicle meeting it would probably seek to pass on, what would seem to be the left of a truck going in the same direction. Result: a head-on collision with nobody to blame but a fool law.

POOR APPETITE.

A physician in attempting to put weight on a patient is often up against a stiff proposition.

With the overweight person the problem is not so complicated, because in every case the reduction in the amount of food intake, with an increase in the amount of exercise taken will give results—sometimes startling—but always some results. But with the very thin person, the very first obstacle he meets is the lack of appetite, no desire for food. He is absolutely sound in every way, and yet from the very lack of food he becomes almost like skin and bones.

What is the matter? I told of a case in a former article where a chap had fasted for nearly four weeks.

After resuming food again he found that he had practically lost his desire for food.

There did not seem to be anything that really tempted him. There are other people who have actually not had enough food for such a length of time that when food became more plentiful, found they had no appetite for it.

Then there are others who imagine that they have a form of stomach ailment that will give further trouble by eating food of any kind, and they cut their daily supply down below the actual needs of the body.

There are others also that have gone through some unusual circumstances, or experienced some emotional disturbance, and they also find that they have no desire for food.

Some people also experiment on themselves with different diets to see just what suits them best. This is often done even when they are in perfect health, and know they are in perfect health. This also often leads to a loss of appetite entirely.

What is the matter in all these cases?

Simply that the brain, the nerves, have gone a little astray temporarily in the matter of food. Is it serious? It can be serious, because if you don't eat, you'll die. That's a straight fact. However the cure in all these cases is to be able to assure the patient by the X ray or other means that no organic trouble exists. The next step is supplying wholesome food (not soft sops) that requires the physician, by straight wholesome advice is able to effect the cure. Medicine is of no avail in these cases.

Von Lossow Denies Plotting

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Munich, March 10.—General Von Lossow, former commander of the Bavarian Reichswehr, whose troops brought about the collapse of the Munich nationalist uprising last November, testified today in the Ludendorff-Hitler high treason trial, assailing General Erich Ludendorff and Adolf Hitler as "vain, ambitious braggarts."

Von Lossow declared that Ludendorff and Hitler "talked big, but lacked common sense." He revealed that he did not take the nationalists' plan seriously.

"My agreement to take part in the 'beer cellar putsch' was only part of the comedy," he explained. "I wanted to maintain freedom of action."

Von Lossow is one of the three star witnesses, the others being Dr. Von Kahr, former Bavarian dictator and Herr Seisser, formerly a high Bavarian police official.

Counsel for the defense protested vigorously against Von Kahr, Von Lossow and Seisser being heard as witnesses claiming they were wire pullers in the November putsch.

"These witnesses have been called to state the truth," replied the presiding judge.

Von Lossow is 56 years of age and a bachelor. He wore civilian clothes and his face was pale.

He said the nationalists planned to establish a directory form of government if their coup were successful, uninfluenced by any parliament. He denied ever planning a march upon Berlin, calling such a move "childish." He said Hitler's military plans appeared to him as "stupid" and his speeches "bore-some."

SAYS BURROUGHS WOULD NOT CHANGE SLIDE'S NAME.

The New York Tribune says, editorially:

Keep the Old Names.

Time and again occasion arises to protest against the changing of an old place name for no sufficient reason. The desire to honor the memory of John Burroughs has prompted a petition to rename for him Slide Mountain, the highest peak of the Catskills, which already bears a label commemorating the great naturalist. Not in depreciation of Burroughs, but because they do not believe in relabeling their mountains, many residents of the Catskills oppose the change in name.

They say, knowing Burroughs, that he would be the first to dissuade his admirers from thus disguising Slide Mountain. It was a favorite peak of his. He wrote delightfully in "Rivervy" of his adventures on the slope and summit. He had a strong relish for old names and old associations. The thought of calling Slide Mountain, or Esopus Creek, or the Hudson River anything else surely would have been repugnant to him.

Tampering with names that have gained by long usage a right to permanence ought to be discouraged. They have a firm hold on local sentiment. They should be protected from innovators so insensitive to tradition as to wish to discard them.

Woodstock Bill Is Introduced

Assemblyman Van Wagenen Has Introduced a Bill Authorizing Town Board of Woodstock to Audit and Allow Claims Incurred in Excess of Appropriation.

Assemblyman S. B. Van Wagenen has introduced the following bill in the assembly at Albany:

Section 1. The town board of the town of Woodstock, in the county of Ulster, is hereby authorized and empowered to audit and allow, in such amounts as to them may seem just and proper, such claims against the said town of Woodstock for the maintenance and repair of highways and bridges in said town, the making of other highway improvements and for the purchase, repair and maintenance of machinery, as have been heretofore incurred by the town superintendent of highways of said town in excess of the appropriations made for such purposes under the provisions of the highway law, and in accordance therewith, and all such claims as audited and allowed by the said town board, which were heretofore incurred by the town superintendent of highways of said town, in excess of the appropriations made for such purposes are hereby legalized, ratified and confirmed.

§ 2. Such town board of said town is hereby authorized and empowered by resolution to borrow money and issue certificates of indebtedness of said town in such sum as may be necessary to pay the claims herein legalized, ratified and confirmed, which certificates of indebtedness so issued shall be payable not later than March first, nineteen hundred and thirty, and shall bear interest not to exceed the rate of six per centum per annum, and such certificates as shall be authorized by the said town board shall be signed by the supervisor and town clerk of said town, and the supervisor of said town is hereby authorized and empowered to negotiate and issue certificates of indebtedness as authorized hereunder and to credit the proceeds thereof to the funds out of which the claims herein legalized are to be paid.

When the certificates of indebtedness, herein authorized have been negotiated and the proceeds thereof deposited to the funds therein provided, the supervisor of said town is hereby authorized and empowered to pay out of and all of the claims which are audited by the town board, in accordance with this act to the extent of such allowance or audit by said town board.

§ 3. The supervisor of the town of Woodstock shall each year, on or before the Tuesday succeeding general election, file with the clerk of the board of supervisors of Ulster county a statement of the amount and number of certificates of indebtedness issued pursuant to this act, the amount and number of certificates falling due or which shall become due during the next succeeding year, and of the amount of interest due or to become due during the next succeeding year upon such certificates of indebtedness, and also a statement showing the proportion of the amount of such certificates which shall have been employed and used in the payment of claims for services, material or other charges applicable to each of the four subdivisions of section ninety-four of the highway law.

§ 4. The board of supervisors of Ulster county, in each year, while such certificates are outstanding and unpaid, shall cause to be levied and assessed upon the taxable property of the town of Woodstock, to be collected at the same time and in the same manner as other town charges, a sufficient sum to pay the principal and interest of the said certificates of indebtedness and the said sum shall be levied upon the whole of the taxable property of the town of Woodstock, according to the purposes for which the proceeds of said certificates of indebtedness were used and in accordance with the provisions of the highway law applicable to the levying of such taxes.

§ 5. This act shall take effect immediately.

Land Granted to Lafayette

In 1803, Lafayette was given ten different grants of land along the Mississippi river, and in 1824 he was granted one township which comprised 36,360 acres of land in west Florida. Tallahassee is now located on this site. It is impossible to give the locations of the other grants, as the land was not surveyed at that time except by special surveys, which were indicated by familiar landmarks.

His 600,000th Fingerprint

A. J. Rence has just received his 600,000th fingerprint. Mr. Rence who works with William J. Burns in Uncle Sam's farflung detective force, is in charge of the largest collection of fingerprints ever assembled under a single roof. The whole collection recently was moved from the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., to Washington, D. C.

The fingerprints in Mr. Rence's collection were made for the most part in the United States, but there are also thousands made elsewhere. The collection is an international one and Mr. Rence receives records currently from Great Britain, France, Denmark, Argentina, Canada and Mexico. If that sort of thing keeps up, it soon will be impossible for a criminal to find a safe hiding place anywhere in the world. All he needs to leave on the scene of his crime is a print of his finger and regardless of where the crime is committed—when the system gets to working as expected, with all countries holding membership—and Mr. Rence, from his collection, can identify the criminal if he has ever committed a previous crime.

Scotland Yard alone, London's famed detective system, has a greater collection of fingerprints than that over which Mr. Rence presides, but those of Scotland Yard are scattered throughout Great Britain, whereas Mr. Rence, so to speak, has his all at his finger tips.

If a bill now pending in congress becomes a law, Mr. Rence will take over 160,000 more fingerprints now in the collection of the International Association of Police Chiefs. That will make his collection the largest anywhere and will establish it as an unequalled clearing house of identification.

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Denby Bids Navy Goodbye

Says He Is Glad Stress Is Over As Co-Workers Say Farewell—Roosevelt Takes Charge Temporarily.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, March 10.—Edwin Denby said good bye to the navy today.

Amid the strains of Auld Lang Syne, played by the famous Marine Band, all the high ranking officers of the navy, the attaches, clerks and hundreds of civilian employees who have been associated with Denby during the three years that he has directed the American navy, bled through his office this morning to shake his hand and bid him farewell.

The civilian employees presented the secretary with an engraved memorial, expressing their appreciation of his courtesy and consideration as their chief and wishing him future happiness.

Denby was jovial and smiling throughout the whole ceremony. He told the naval officers as they passed that, after all, he was glad to get away at last from the storm and stress of official Washington and to retire to private life.

At 10:15 o'clock, Major General John A. Lejeune, commandant of the United States marine corps, entered Denby's office and swore in the secretary as a major in the Marine Reserve Corps. Denby held this rank when he became secretary of the navy.

Late this afternoon, the job of running the navy department will be turned over formally to Theodore Roosevelt, the present assistant secretary. Roosevelt will serve as acting secretary of the navy until Denby's successor is named by President Coolidge.

The president today was still trying to make his choice, but it was indicated at the White House that a final decision might not be reached today.

Denby's last official act was the sending of the following message, by telegraph and radio, to American naval establishments, ashore and afloat, throughout the world:

"All navy:
"Goodbye and God bless you."
"Edwin Denby."

BRITISH ADMIRALTY ADMITS MEDITERRANEAN ARMADA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 10.—Admiralty officials admitted to International News Service today that plans are on foot to shift the base of the British fleet from the North Sea to the Mediterranean, keeping the bulk of England's powerful sea fighting machines in the southern waters.

Officials pointed out that the Mediterranean has become the center of British trade and is the most important naval area from a strategic viewpoint. Present conditions, they said, made it advisable for them to rearrange their naval fleet.

Admiralty officials declared that no offensive is contemplated. They said the navy merely wished to police thoroughly a waterway vital to British trade interests.

They Saved and Saved to Get the Thing They Wanted, and Then Found It Didn't Satisfy.

ON THE top of the hill stood the big brick house—a mansion, compared to the other houses of the New England village. At the foot of the hill nestled the tiny brown farmhouse, half buried in lilacs, climbing roses, and hollyhocks.

Years ago when Reuben had first brought Emily to that little brown cottage, he had said to her wistfully: "Sweetheart, 'tain't much of a place, I know, but we'll save and save, every cent we can get, an' by an' by we'll go up to live in the big house on the hill!" And he kissed so tenderly the pretty little woman he had married only that morning that she smiled brightly and declared that the small brown house was the very nicest place in the world.

But, as time passed, the "big house" came to be the Mecca of all their hopes, and penny by penny the savings grew. It was slow work, though, and to hearts less courageous the thing would have seemed an impossibility. No luxuries and scarcely the bare necessities of life—came to the little house under the hill, but every month a tiny sum found its way into the savings bank.

Reuben never smoked. While other men used the fragrant weed to calm their weary brains and bodies, Reuben—ate peanuts. It had been a curious passion of his, from the time when as a boy he was first presented with a penny of his very own, to spend all his spare cash on this peculiar luxury; and the slow munching of this pleasant delicacy had the same soothing effect on him that a good cigar or an old clay pipe had upon his brotherman. But from the day of his marriage all this was changed; the dimes and the nickels bought no more peanuts, but went to swell the common fund.

It is doubtful if even this heroic economy would have accomplished the desired end had not a certain railroad company cast envious eyes upon the level valley and forthwith sent long arms of steel bearing a puffing engine up through the quiet village. A large tract of waste land belonging to Reuben Gray suddenly became surprisingly valuable, and a sum that trebled twice over the scanty savings of years grew all in a night.

One crisp October day, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Gray awoke to the fact that they were a little under sixty years of age, and in possession of more than the big sum of money necessary to enable them to carry out the dreams of their youth. They began joyous preparations at once.

The big brick house at the top of the hill had changed hands twice during the last forty years, and the present owner expressed himself as nothing loath to part, not only with the house itself, but with many of its furnishings; and before the winter snow fell the little brown cottage was sold to a thrifty young couple from the neighboring village, and the Grays took up their abode in their new home.

"Well, Emily, this is livin', now, ain't it?" said Reuben, as he carefully let himself down into the depths of a velvet covered chair in the great parlor. ("My ain't this nice!")

"Just perfectly lovely," quavered the thin voice of his wife, as she threw a surreptitious glance at Reuben's shoes to see if they were quite clean enough for such sacred precincts.

It was their first evening in their new abode, and they were a little weary, for they had spent the entire day in exploring every room, peering into every closet and trying every chair that the establishment contained. It was still quite early when they trudged anxiously about the house, intent on fastening the numerous doors and windows.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the little woman nervously, "I'm most afraid to go to bed, Reuben, for fear some one will break in an' steal all these nice things."

"Well, you can sit up if you want to," replied her husband dryly, "but I shall go to bed. Most of these things have been here high on to twenty years, an' I guess they'll last the night through." And he marched solemnly upstairs to the big east chamber, meekly followed by his wife.

It was the next morning when Mrs. Gray was washing the breakfast dishes that her husband came in at the kitchen door and stood looking at her thoughtfully.

"Say, Emily," said he, "you'd oughter have a hired girl. 'Tain't your place to be doin' work like this now."

Mrs. Gray gasped—half terrified, half pleased—and shook her head; but her husband was not to be silenced.

"Well, you had—an' you've got to, too. An' you must buy some new clothes—lots of 'em! Why, Emily, we've got heaps of money now, an' we hadn't oughter wear such lookin' things."

Emily nodded; she had thought of this before. And the hired-girl hint must have found a warm spot in her heart in which to grow, for that very afternoon she sallied forth, intent on a visit to her counsellor on all occasions—the doctor's wife.

"Well, Mrs. Steele, I don't know what to do. Reuben says I ought to have a hired girl; but I hain't no more idea where to get one than anything, an' I don't know I want one, if I did."

And Mrs. Gray sat back in her chair and rocked violently to and fro, eyeing her hostess with the evident consciousness of having presented a poser. That resourceful woman, however, was far from being nonplussed; she beamed upon her visitor with a joyful smile.

"Just the thing, my dear Mrs. Gray! You know I am to go south with May for the winter. The house will be closed and the doctor at the hotel. I had just been wondering what to do with Nancy, for I want her again in the spring. Now, you can have her until then, and by that time you will know how you like the idea of keeping a girl. She is a perfect treasure, capable of carrying the entire work of the household, only—and Mrs. Steele paused long enough to look doubtfully at her friend—"she is a little independent, and won't stand much interference."

Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Gray departed, well pleased, though with a little frightened. She spent the rest of the afternoon in trying to decide between a black alpaca and a green cashmere dress.

That night Reuben brought home a large bag of peanuts and put them down in triumph on the kitchen table. "There!" he announced in high glee, "I'm goin' to have a bang-up good time!"

"Why, Reuben," remonstrated his wife gently, "you can't eat them things—you hain't got no teeth to chew 'em with!"

The man's lower jaw dropped.

"Well, I'm a-goin' to try it, anyhow," he insisted. And try it he did; but the way his poor old stomach rebelled against the half-masticated things effectually prevented a repetition of the feast.

Early on Monday morning Nancy appeared. Mrs. Gray assumed a brave aspect, but she quaked in her shoes as she showed the big strapping girl to her room. Five minutes later Nancy came into the kitchen to find Mrs. Gray bending over an obstinate coal fire in the range—with neither coal nor range was the little woman in the least familiar.

"There, now," said Nancy briskly, "I'll fix that. You just tell me what you want for dinner, and I can find the things myself." And she attacked the stove with such a clatter and din that Mrs. Gray retreated in terror, murmuring, "Ham and eggs, if you please," as she fled through the door. Once in the parlor, she seated herself in the middle of the room and thought how nice it was not to get dinner; but she jumped nervously at every sound from the kitchen.

On Tuesday she had mastered her fear sufficiently to go into the kitchen and make a cottage cheese. She did not notice the unfavorable glances of her maid-of-all-work. Wednesday morning she spent happily putting over "doing up" some handkerchiefs, and she wondered why Nancy kept banging the oven door so often.

Thursday she made a special kind of pie that Reuben liked, and remarked pointedly to Nancy that she herself never washed dishes without wearing an extra apron; furthermore, she always placed the pans the other way in the sink. Friday she rearranged the tins on the pantry shelves, that Nancy had so unaccountably messed up. On Saturday the inevitable explosion came:

"If you please, mum, I'm willin' to do your work, but seems to me it don't make no difference to you whether I wear one apron or six, or whether I hang my dish-towels on a string or on the bars, or whether I wash goblets or kettles first; and I ain't in the habit of havin' folks spyin' round on me. If you want me to go, I'll go; but if I stay, I want to be let alone!"

Poor little Mrs. Gray fled to her seat in the parlor, and for the rest of that winter she did not dare to call her own home; but her table was beautifully set and served, and her house was as neat as wax.

The weeks passed and Reuben began to be restless. One day he came in from the post office fairly bubbling over with excitement.

"Say, Emily, when folks have money they travel. Let's go somewhere!"

"Why, Reuben—where?" quavered his wife, dropping into the nearest chair.

"Oh, I dunno," with cheerful vagueness; then suddenly animated, "Let's go to Boston and see the sights!"

"But, Reuben, we don't know no one there," ventured his wife doubtfully. "Pooh! What if we don't? Hain't we got money? Can't we stay at a hotel? Well, I guess we can!"

Nancy was tremblingly requested to take a two weeks' vacation, and great was the rejoicing when she graciously acquiesced.

On a bright February morning the journey began. It was not a long one—four hours only—and the time flew by as on wings of the wind. Reuben assumed an air of worldly wisdom, quite awe-inspiring to his wife. He had visited Boston as a boy, and so had a dim idea of what to expect; moreover, he had sold stock and produce in the large towns near his home, and on the whole felt quite self-sufficient.

As the long train drew into the station, and they alighted and followed the crowd, Mrs. Gray looked with round eager eyes of wonder at the people—she had not realized that there were so many in the world, and she clung closer and closer to Reuben, who was marching along with a show of indifference.

"There," said he, as he deposited his wife and his bags in a seat in the huge waiting room; "now you stay right here, an' don't you move. I'm going to find out about hotels and things."

He was gone so long that she was nearly fainting from fright before she spied his dear form coming toward her. His thin, plain face looked wonderfully beautiful to her, and she almost hugged him right before all those people.

"Well, I've got a hotel all right; but I hain't been here for so long I've kinder forgot about the streets, so the man said we'd better have a team to take us there." And he picked up the bags and trudged off, closely followed by Emily.

His shrewd Yankee wit carried him safely through a bargain with the driver, and they were soon jolting and rumbling along to their destination. He had asked the man behind the newsstand about a hotel, casually mentioning that he had money—plenty of it—and wanted a "bangup good place." The spirit of mischief had entered the heart of the newsman, and he had given Reuben the name of one of the very highest-priced, most luxurious hotels in the city.

As the carriage stopped, Reuben marched boldly up the broad steps and entered the palatial office, with Emily close at his heels. Two bell-boys sprang forward—the one to take the bags, the other to offer to show Mrs. Gray to the reception room.

"No, thank you, I ain't particular," said she sweetly; "I'll wait for Reuben here." And she dropped down into the nearest chair, while her husband advanced toward the desk. She noticed that men were looking curiously at her, and she felt relieved when Reuben and the pretty boy came back and said they would go up to their room.

"Why, Reuben Gray! Whatever in the World Are You Doing?"

She stood the elevator pretty well, though she gave a little gasp (which she tried to choke into a cough) as it started. Reuben turned to the boy.

"Where can I get somethin' to eat?"

"Luncheon is being served in the main dining-room on the first floor, sir."

Visions of a lunch as he knew it in Emily's pantry came to him, and he looked a little dubious.

"Well, I'm pretty hungry; but if that's all I can get I suppose it will have to do."

Ten minutes later an officious head waiter, whom Emily looked upon with timid awe, was seating them in a superbly appointed dining-room. Reuben looked at the menu doubtfully, while an attentive, soft-voiced man at his elbow bent low to catch his order. Few of the strange-looking words conveyed any sort of meaning to the poor hungry man. At length spying "chicken" halfway down the card, he pointed to it in relief.

"I guess I'll take some of that," he said, briefly; then he added, "I don't know how much it costs—you hain't got no price after it."

The waiter comprehended at once. "The luncheon is served in courses, sir; you pay for the whole—whether you eat it or not," he added shrilly.

"If you will let me serve you according to my judgment, sir, I think I can please you."

Two hours later they started for a long walk down the wonderful, fascinating street. Each marvelous window display came in for its full share of attention, but they stood longest before bakeries and restaurants. Finally, upon coming to one of the latter, where an enticing sign announced "Boiled Dinner Today, Served Hot at All Hours," Reuben could endure it no longer.

"By Jinks, Emily, I've just got to have some of that. That colded-up mess I ate at the hotel didn't go to the spot at all. Come on, let's have a good square meal."

The hotel knew them just one night.

The next morning before breakfast Reuben manfully paid his—his astounding—bill and departed for more congenial quarters, which they soon found on a neighboring side street.

The rest of the visit was, of course, delightful, only the streets were pretty crowded and noisy, and they couldn't sleep very well at night; moreover, Reuben lost his pocketbook with a small sum of money in it; so, on the whole, they concluded to go home a little before the two weeks ended.

When spring came Nancy returned to her former mistress, and her vacant throne remained unoccupied. Little by little the dust gathered on the big velvet chairs in the parlor and the room was opened less and less. When the first green things commenced to send tender shoots up through the wet, brown earth, Reuben's restlessness was very noticeable. By and by he began to go off very early in the morning, returning at noon for a hasty dinner, then away again till night. To his wife's repeated questioning he would reply, sheepishly, "Oh, just loafin', that's all."

And Emily was nervous, too. Of late she had taken a great fancy to a daily walk, and it always led in one direction—down past the little brown house. Of course she glanced over the fence at the roses and lilacs, and she couldn't help seeing that they all looked sadly neglected. By and by the weeds came, grew, and multiplied; and every time she passed the gate her throat fairly choked in sympathy with her old pets.

Evenings, she and Reuben spent very happily on the back stoop, talking of their great good fortune in being able to live in such a fine large house. Somehow they said more than usual about it this spring.

One day, in passing this same little house, Emily stopped a moment and leaned over the gate, that she might gain a better view of her favorite rosebush.

She evinced the same interest the next two mornings, and on the third she timidly opened the gate and walked up the old path to the door. A buxom woman with a big baby in her arms, and a bigger one hanging to her skirts, answered the knock.

"How do you do, Mrs. Gray. Won't you come in?" said she civilly, looking mildly surprised.

"No, thank you—yes—I mean—I came to see you," stammered Emily confusedly.

"You're very good," murmured the woman, still standing in the doorway. "Your flowers are so pretty," ventured Mrs. Gray, unable to keep the wistfulness out of her voice.

"Do you think so?" carelessly, "I s'pose they need weedin'." (What with my babies an' all, I don't get much time for posies.)

"Oh, please,—would it be too much trouble to let me come an' putter around the beds?" queried the little woman eagerly. "Oh, I would like it so much!"

The other laughed heartily. "Well, I really don't see how it's goin' to trouble me to have you weedin' my flowers; in fact, I should think the shoe would be on the other foot." Then she red showed in her face a little. "You're welcome to do whatever you want, Mrs. Gray."

"Oh, thank you," exclaimed Emily, as she quickly pulled up an enormous weed at her feet.

It took but a few hours' work to bring about a wonderfully happy change in that forlorn garden, and then Mrs. Gray found that she had a big pile of weeds to dispose of. Filling her apron with a portion of them, she started to go behind the house in search of a garbage heap. Around the corner she came face to face with her husband, hoe in hand.

"Why, Reuben Gray! Whatever in the world are you doing?"

For a moment the man was crushed with the enormity of his crime; then he caught sight of his wife's dirt-stained fingers.

"Well, I guess I ain't doing no worse than you be!" And he turned his back and began to hoe vigorously.

Emily dropped the weeds where she stood, turned about, and walked through the garden and up the hill, pondering many things.

Supper was strangely quiet that night. Mrs. Gray had asked a single question: "Reuben, do you want the little house back?"

A glad light leaped into the old man's eyes.

"Emily—would you be willin' to?"

After the supper dishes were put away, Mrs. Gray, with a light shawl overhead, came to her husband on the back stoop.

"Come, dear; I think we'd better go down tonight."

A few minutes later they sat stiffly in the best room of the farmhouse, while the buxom woman and her husband looked wonderingly at them.

"You wa'n't thinkin' of sellin', was ye?" began Reuben insistently.

The younger man's eyelid quivered a little.

"Well, no,—I can't hardly say that I was. I hain't but just bought."

Reuben hitched his chair a bit and glanced at Emily.

"Well, me and my wife have concluded that we're too old to transplant—we don't seem to take root very easy—and we've been thinkin'—would you swap even, now?"

It must have been a month later that Reuben Gray and his wife were contentedly sitting in the old familiar kitchen of the little brown house.

"I've been wonderin', Reuben," said his wife—"I've been wonderin' if 'twouldn't have been just as well if we'd taken some of the good things while they was goin'—before we got too old to enjoy 'em."

"Yes—peanuts, for instance," acquiesced her husband ruefully.

Coach Knute Rockne Will Cut Schedule

"Of one thing I am convinced," says Coach Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, "no college team can play ten games on successive Saturdays, a majority of them major contests, and keep from going stale."

"The season just closed has taught me that lesson. Next season it is my intention to play only eight games, with a breathing spell before one of the big contests. Since Nebraska has beaten us two years in succession, in all probability I will point my team for that game next season. We must wipe out those two defeats."

"A team without spirit, the old fight, is no good, regardless of its recognized strength. Too much work results in staleness, and when a team goes stale it loses its fight."

"My team lacked fighting spirit in the Nebraska game and suffered defeat. Lack of spirit is a feature of play that every coach must constantly guard against."

HAROLD GRANGE TO TRY OUT BASEBALL

Illinois Football Star Out for Chance on Diamond.

Harold Grange, the University of Illinois football phenom, is out for baseball. He earned 16 letters in high schools—four in each of the major sports. His best sport then—as now—was football, then in order came basketball, track and baseball, but he will limit his college athletic activities to two sports.

He was a halfback in football. In the court game he played forward and occasionally center. He was an excellent dribbler and a good shot under the basket. He relied more on speed than on stops, turns and dodges. Grange usually won seven firsts in the high school track meets. His specialties were the three short dashes.

both hurdles and the high and broad jumps. In baseball he played third base and once in a while covered first. At Illinois he will try for the outfield.

Grange competed in the interscholastic track meet at Illinois in 1920, 1921 and 1922. The first year he tied for first in the high jump, was third in the 100-yard dash, and fourth in the 220-yard dash. The next spring he took two first places, coping the century dash in 0:10:02 and the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet 5 1/2 inches. In 1922, his senior year, he led the field in the 220-yard dash in 0:23:02 and was third in the 100-yard dash.

As a freshman at Illinois Grange set the campus astir in the 1923 indoor intramural track meet when he annexed 17 points and single-handed won the meet for his fraternity.

Mack's Outfield Made Up of Right-Handed Hitters

Little chance has any of Connie Mack's recruits of breaking into a job in the outfield with the A's next season. Connie figures his outer works will consist of Simmons, Miller, Strand and Welch. Miller and Welch are the two holdovers from the 1923 season.

This will make the Athletics' outfield the most unique of any club in either major league. It will not have a single left-handed hitter. These four fly chasers bat right-handed.

When it was pointed out to Mack that he would not have a left-handed-hitting outfielder in his battle array, a stratagem many big league skippers cherish, he declared: "But I will have hard hitters and I don't care how they bat so long as they hit that old ball for me."

When Mack stepped out to strengthen his outfield he gave the style of batting the men he sought not a thought. He was after the punch and he figures he now has it.

"The fact that I will have to go through the season with only right-handed batters should not be construed that I figure left-handed hitters are passing out," explained Mack. "Some of the best hitters in the game are left-handers. It just so happens that all mine are right-handers."

STANFORD'S BRILLIANT SWIMMERS

Stanford university's brilliant quartet of aquatic athletes who will be to the national intercollegiate swimming championships to be held at the College of New York on March 28 and 29. Left to right, Albert White, Nat A. A. U. indoor fency diving champion; Wallace O'Connor, greatest mid-distance swimmer the coast has developed since Norman Ross; Charlie Flinn, coast breast stroke champion, and Dud De Groot, backstroke swimmer.

Washingtons Landed in Select Division

When Donnie Bush, the mite manager, brought Washington into fourth place last season, he turned a trick that the Nationals have only accomplished on six other occasions. For in all the years that the capital hamlet has had a team in the American league it has landed in the select section but seven times. Three seasons it has finished in fourth place, two in third and two in second. Like the Browns, Washington has yet to annex its first pennant.

Featherweight Title Is Aim of Edouard Mascart

Paris publications predict that in the near future Edouard Mascart, the new featherweight champion of Europe, will come to "the land of the dollar" to engage Johnny Dundee for the world's championship. The journals base their predictions on a cablegram sent to the French Boxing federation by Jim Johnston, Dundee's manager, to the effect that Dundee stands ready to meet Mascart at any time. The major question, Paris journals say, is where will the bout be staged?

There is more money in America than in France, according to the Echo des Sports and for that reason Mascart will meet Dundee, if at all, in the United States. The boxing expert of the Echo des Sports also feels a little worried over the possible outcome of the match. Will Mascart follow the footsteps of Crigui? The Paris writer wants to know. The Paris sports writers feel that Mascart is not a man who should be underrated because they say that he has ability and would at least make things as interesting for Dundee as he has ever known them.

Kirkwood Finished Fifth

Joe Kirkwood, former Australian open golf champion and holder of the California open championship last year, finished fifth this year turning in a card of 299 for 72 holes.

Stubby Mack Set Loose With String Attached

Frank ("Stubby") Mack was not among those present when the White Sox hurlers reported at Winter Haven, Fla. The young hurler will spend next season under Ira Thomas at Shreveport, La. A string has been attached to the player and he'll be recalled next fall.

Mack was purchased in midseason of 1922 from the Seattle club, the price being $10,000. Due to various ailments he showed only flashes of form, so last spring he was farmed out, first to Nashville, Tenn., and then to Galveston, Tex.

Phils and Macks to Play

The Athletics and the Phillies will have a real "city championship series" next April. They have agreed to play seven games, beginning April 1. Four will be played at Shibe park and three at the park of the Phillies and the games will be run along from April 1 to 13, inclusive.

Sporting Squib

Among new players obtained by the Shreveport club, under option are Pitcher Hamilton and Outfielder Reb Rasmussen from Pittsburgh.

The Vernon club has sold the veteran first baseman and outfielder Elton Hyatt, to the Galveston club of the Texas league.

The Athletics traded Schang, B. and Strunk to Boston December 1917, for Gregg, Chet Thomas, Kepp, plus $60,000.

Ira Thomas, president and manager of the Shreveport club, closed his career where he acquires Shreveport Orr from the Seattle club.

All football games of the National academy next year will be played in the new stadium at Annapolis, Md., those against the Military academy and Princeton.

The Philadelphia Nationals have decided, on pleas from Cincinnati, to waive on infielder Walter Rife and he will go to Vernon as part payment for Jake May.

Talk of taking the bread out of men's mouths, how about that? The governor who will not let Chuck Gens, Tommy Gibbons or Jack Dwyer fight in that state?

Chief Bender, former pitcher of Philadelphia Athletics, won a world's series game than any player—one in 1905, two in 1910, in 1911, and one in 1913.

Takeo Harada, new tennis champion of Japan, will participate in the States this spring and may also compete in the Davis cup play as a representative of the Oriental nation.

Del Gainer, first baseman and fielder, after being reinstated by Commissioner Landis and given his lease by the St. Louis National promptly signed with the Houston club.

Bill Roper has made a fine record as head coach at Princeton since war. Of the ten games played Harvard and Yale during that time Princeton has won five, tied two, lost three.

Williams to Lecture on Labor

William Williams, "The man who overalls to ascertain the cause of industrial discontent," who will be the last lecturer in the course given by the Federation of Women's Clubs, for the benefit of the Kingston City Library, is in great demand as a speaker before the many schools, universities, churches, and other organizations. The lecturer, being one of the most important problems in the country, no wonder Mr. Williams's reputation of his personal experiences and lectures therefrom is in such great demand as it is. On March 26th, he will speak at the High School on "The Turned Up About People."

DECREASE IN FEBRUARY CONSTRUCTION

February building contracts in the eastern states (including about 7% of the total construction in this country) amounted to $299,929,100, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation, a decrease of one per cent over January, and an increase of ten per cent over February of last year. January showed an increase of 10 per cent over January, 1923. The total for the first two months of this year, $601,880,600, was a 15 per cent increase over the corresponding period of 1923. This increase over last year is principally in New York state and New Jersey and is mainly due to continued large volume of residential buildings in New York, New England and the south. It shows very moderate increases over last year; the remaining sections show moderate decreases. Moderate decreases are normal for this season of the building cycle. Large increases in the New York district at the present time are abnormal.

The February record showed increases in commercial and educational buildings and public works and decreases in industrial and residential buildings.

In detail the February record indicated: $142,079,200, or 47 per cent of residential buildings; $47,123,400, or 16 per cent for commercial buildings; $37,955,600, or 13 per cent for public works and utilities; $31,400, or 10 per cent for educational buildings; and $19,059,700, or 6 per cent for industrial buildings.

Contemplated new work reported February amounted to $504,647,400, a decrease of 25 per cent from amount reported in January. Such decrease is usual at this season of the year, the heaviest volume of planning customarily being done in the winter months.

"Goddess" and a Harding Picture

Last Public Appearance of Late President to be Shown at Keene's—Also Thrilling Film.

In connection with the film, "The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss and Alice Joyce, which will be shown at Keene's Theater on Wednesday and Thursday, Manager Gildersleeve has secured through permission of the General Federation of Women's Clubs a most unusual reel. It is recorded the last public appearance in Washington of the late President Harding when he dedicated the "Home, Sweet Home" house. In the brief space of fifteen minutes the film combines a story of the housing methods of mankind in different parts of the world.

The "Home, Sweet Home" house, which was dedicated by President Harding just before his western trip, was built in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the writing of the famous song of that name by John Howard Payne. The original detached cottage of Payne stands in Long Island.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs conceived the idea of reproducing the original home of Payne, thoroughly modernizing the interior and furnishing it in the taste of the period as exemplified by the best interior decorators. The reproduction stands in Washington across from the Treasury building and is daily visited by people from all parts of the world.

"The Green Goddess," which is shown at Keene's with this interesting film, is a story which involves the wife of a British major who is stationed on the India frontier. An uprising among the natives makes it necessary for her to go to her children in a distant part of the country. David Powell, as Dr. Basil Traherne, a scientist and intrepid aviator, volunteers to take her and her husband to the scene with an aeroplane. The plane falls near the shrine of the Green Goddess and the Rajah whose three brothers have been put to death by the British government, attempts to secure vengeance. The major is killed and difficulties follow in rapid order. However, the British aerial forces arrive in time to save both Lucille and Traherne, who is in love with her.

"The Green Goddess" played for two years on Broadway as a stage play and now has been made into a gigantic spectacular photoplay supported by a strong cast.

19 Dead Taken From Utah Mine

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Castle Gate, Utah, March 10.—With 19 bodies actually removed from the mine, 15 of them identified, the work of rescue in Mine No. 2 of the Utah Fuel Company, where 173 coal miners were entombed Saturday, by a series of terrific explosions from an undetermined cause, was speeding up this afternoon.

It was reported earlier in the day that 13 more bodies had been removed but officials corrected this, announcing that 12 of the bodies had been located and were being brought out as fast as rescuers could accomplish the work.

At noon members of the rescue party reported that many additional bodies could be seen but efforts to reach them were still hampered by the torn and twisted timbers that choked the inner passageways.

Castle Gate, Utah, March 10.—Mine No. 2 of the Utah Fuel Company here, which was transformed into a shambles by a terrific triple explosion, today continued to give up its dead. Early today 18 bodies had been recovered, most of them mutilated and badly burned.

All of the bodies have been identified by means of the little brass tags that are attached to all underground workers as they enter the mine.

Two of the bodies brought out were headless and a third bore ghastly scars and wounds adding mute evidence to the reports of the rescue teams that the blast let go with dynamic force.

Three temporary morgues have been established and residents of the stricken town are serving on identification committees.

Rescue teams of volunteer workers labored throughout the night and early today had penetrated the entire 2,000 feet of the escape way and more than 3,000 feet into the mine itself via the main portal.

Several small fires were encountered, causing much delay to the rescue teams and making their work extremely hazardous.

Debris blocked the passage practically every foot of the way.

Everywhere was evidence of the terrific force with which the explosions tore their way through the entries and rooms, probably spreading death to all the 173 men said by company officials to have been underground at the time.

The absence of bodies in the main passageway, escape way and several of the principal entries leading out of the main passage offered some vague hopes that a few of the men had retreated to distant passages and barricaded themselves. Expert rescue workers, however, held out little encouragement to the mourners that any man in the mine was alive after the terrific blast and the penetrating death vapors that followed.

The explosions destroyed concrete bulkheads, crumpled up heavy steel doors and splintered huge timbers, according to the rescue teams, and it was apparent that all the victims whose bodies have thus far been removed died instantly from the force of the blast.

Every canary bird in Carbon county has been rounded up to aid the helmeted rescue workers. Men advancing into the mine carrying a canary, the bird giving first evidence of the presence of poisonous gases.

Thousands of people poured into the sorrowing little mining town over Sunday making it necessary to establish dead lines approximately a mile back from the scene of the explosion.

This action made it possible for rescue workers and volunteers to pursue the work unhampered by the morbid and curious onlookers.

Hundreds of sorrowing widows and orphaned children remained as close to the mine mouth as possible waiting for bodies to be brought from the death shaft.

Mine company officials this morning declined to make an official statement on the probable cause of the explosion but the general opinion continued to prevail that it was caused by an accumulation of dust.

Offers of assistance to the stricken town were received from all sections of the state, as well as from points outside.

Governor Charles R. Mabey is on the ground preparing to provide immediate relief if required by the families of the stricken miners. Western headquarters of the American Red Cross at San Francisco has also issued orders to furnish relief through the Utah organization.

OIL LEASE SCANDAL FLOWS AND FLOWS.

Leonard Wood, Jr., manager of a Washington theatre and son of Governor-General Leonard Wood, was summoned by the Senate investigating committee to tell of his reported statement that the oil interests had offered his father the Presidential nomination in 1920 if he would make "Jake" Hamon, Oklahoma oil magnate, Secretary of the Interior. Hamon was later killed by his wife, who also was summoned to testify. Ira E. Bennett, editor of John R. McLean's Washington Post, swore that Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, Republican "whip," was "the principal" he named in the famous wire to McLean, though Curtis indignantly denied. Senator Heflin, of Alabama, had charged "the principal" was President Coolidge. In a speech in New York City Senator Frank B. Willis, Republican of Ohio, denounced what he termed the "whispering campaign of character assassination by insinuation and innuendo in the oil scandal." Samuel J. Prescott, Republican City Chairman in the District of Columbia, was mentioned in one of the wires sent by President Coolidge to McLean in Palm Beach.

Income Tax Cut And Employers

"I have a wife and kiddie with an exemption of $2,900 on a salary of $2,000; see if you can strike oil," was the laconic comment on a recently filed state income tax return.

"Our office force at the Albany district office has been supplemented by auditors to take care of the expected crowds this week," explained Deputy Commissioner Thomas M. Lynch, of the state income tax bureau, today. "We want taxpayers in this district to step right up and secure all necessary information at this office as well as from the bureau agents who will be located this week in Poughkeepsie and Newburgh."

He brought into prominence the way in which the new 25 per cent reduction of state income tax bill, signed by Governor Smith, concerns employers. Where corporations, partnerships or individuals are filing returns of information as to payments to resident employees, the full amount should be shown without any recognition of this cut. Those who employ non-residents should reduce by one quarter the amount of tax due on payments which they made during the year 1923, and then send the difference to the state income tax bureau at Albany. Where these employers have held out amounts from these payments during the year, they should pay back to the non-resident employees any excess over the required 75 per cent. These reduced payments of taxes, not the whole amount, should be reported on both form 102 signed by the non-resident employee, and on form 103 which is sent with each report of this kind.

Holy Name Mock Trial Tonight

This evening at the regular meeting of the St. Joseph's Holy Name Society a mock trial and smoker will be given to the members of the society and their friends.

Gerald Fitzgerald "the Adonis of St. Joseph's" was "arrested" for beating up "Roughhouse" Murphy, "the Fordham flash," over a deal in automobiles. Mr. Fitzgerald demanded a jury "trial" and retained Walter Miller to look after his interests.

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE ROSE AT FLOWER SHOW

Among the new and unusual features at the International Flower Show to be staged in Grand Central Palace, March 17-22, will be the new "Mrs. Calvin Coolidge Rose," introduced by F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown, N. Y. This rose, with its delicate tones of golden yellow, will appear in profusion in the Pierson rose garden, a part of the beautiful display which will turn the Palace into a fragrant bower of June loveliness. This will be the first time that this new rose has been exhibited publicly in New York, although it was presented to Mrs. Coolidge when she was in the city for the Republican dinner on Lincoln's birthday. Dozens of the blossoms will be entered in several competition events, to vie for prizes with many of the older and better known blooms.

Other growers are concentrating their efforts upon new roses, and while there will be many noteworthy features at the show, it is expected that they will form one of the most important divisions of the display.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, March 10.—The stock market opened generally steady today, fractional advances being scattered throughout the list. There were few exceptions, notably Central Leather preferred and East Iron Pipe which declined one point each to 32½ and to 74½ respectively. Oils were outstanding features. Common rose ¼ to 36½. Standard Oil of New Jersey ¼ to 38½. Marland ¼ to 38 and Pacific ½ to 53. Baldwin was firm rising ¼ to 123¼. Railways were steady.

The market turned heavy in the forenoon trading. Initial improvement was not only wiped out, but losses ranging from a fraction to over 2 points were recorded in some of the leading issues. The petroleum shares stood out prominently in the early dealing but after the first hour, heaviness set in. California Petroleum lost ¼ to 24½. Coudon ¼ to 35½ and Houston Oil ¼ to 71. Steels and rails also showed heaviness, losses of a fraction and over being scored. General Electric was a weak spot, yielding nearly 3 points to 211.

Society Notes

Mrs. John Wolf of 56 West Piont street celebrated her 78th anniversary Sunday with her family and a few friends who surprised her with many beautiful flowers and presents. After supper was served a delightful social time was enjoyed by all.

Hirt-Thomson.
Paul F. Hirt of 15 Staples street and Miss Frances A. Thomson of 14 Brewster street were united in marriage on February 29 by the Rev. J. Wilbur Tuttle of St. James's M. E. Church.

Sacco-Sabino.
On Sunday at St. Joseph's Church, Glasco, Miss Jennie Sabino and Mark Sacco, both of Glasco, were united in marriage by the Rev. J. B. Eula. After a honeymoon trip they will reside at Glasco.

Taylor-Butler.
Elizabeth Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Butler of Plattkill, N. Y., and John J. Taylor of Ohioville, N. Y., were married Monday afternoon, March 3, at 4 o'clock, at the St. Charles Church, Gardiner, N. Y., by the Rev. Henry A. Curtan. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will live at Ohioville, N. Y., where the groom owns a farm.

Mrs. Oppenheimer's Anniversary.
A surprise party was tendered Mrs. Oppenheimer on Saturday evening, the occasion of her twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Forst. The party was given by the members of a bridge club of which Mrs. Oppenheimer is a member. Her friends presented her with a handsome plant, after which the guests played cards, prizes being won by Mrs. Henry Forst, Mrs. Harry Jacobs and Mrs. Schoenfeld of Saugerties. During the evening delicious refreshments, brought by the members of the surprise party, were enjoyed and the happy event closed with the wishing of Mrs. Oppenheimer a great many delightful returns of the day.

Zena Surprise Party.
The surprise party given at the home of Mrs. Charles Krause in honor of her birthday proved a complete success in every respect. The Ladies' League of which she is a member presented her with a beautiful plant in full bloom for which she showed her appreciation in a few well chosen words. The out of town guests were Mr. and W. Victor and Dorothy of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Miss Vera Krause, one of the prominent nurses of the Mt. Vernon Hospital, Mr. and Mrs. William Rightmeyer, Bill, Gladys and Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Rightmeyer, Paul, Shirley and Bobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Krause and Loraine, all of Saugerties, N. Y. Mrs. Cornelius Krause of Kingston, besides those of the community, numbering 75 in all. Mrs. Krause was the recipient of some very pretty and useful gifts. After a bounteous luncheon was served by the ladies of the league, all departed in the small hours of the morning wishing Mrs. Krause many more such birthdays as this. It was the first in a long time the entire family had been together, with the exception of the two oldest sons of Mr. Vernon.

A Birthday Party.
Little Miss M. Bernadette Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Walker, of 345 Broadway was hostess to about thirty of her friends Saturday, March 8, in honor of her ninth birthday. She charmingly entertained her guests with games and musical selections. Some splendid dance numbers were also presented. The first number a difficult toe dance was given by little Miss Walker, a very pretty dance by Martha Huestis and Harriet Huestis, a solo dance by Betty Murphy, solo dance, modern fox trot by Glen Quilty and Rena Quilty, a novelty fox trot by Miss Helen Cashion, a dainty little dance by little Christabel Murphy and Aurilia Falsyack, and a duet dance by Marie Elliott and Bernadette Walker. Messrs. John and Robert Cullum sang several solo numbers. At 5 p. m. the supper march was led by Norbert Murray and the little Miss Walker. The table was prettily decorated with Easter flowers and favors. The dining room was very prettily decorated, the color scheme being amber and white. Miss Walker received many beautiful gifts and was voted a royal hostess by her friends on their departure. Those present were Harriet Huestis, Marie Cullum, Helen Cashion, Elizabeth Palen, Ethel Rose, Martha Huestis, Kitty Carroll, Rena Quilty, Betty Murphy, Nan Goldrick, Kathryn Bannon, Margaret Messenger, Bernadette Elliott, Marie Elliott, Christabel Murphy, Kathleen Golden, Aurilia Falsyack, Ethel Miller, Vera Van Elten, Olive Van Elten, Kathryn Falsyack, Messrs. John Cullum, Glen Quilty, Robert Cullum, Joseph Falsyack, Norbert Murray, Leo Murray and James Cullum.

Caunitz-McKittick.
Walter H. Caunitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Caunitz of 223 Ten Broeck avenue, and Dorothy McKittick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKittick of 259 Smith avenue, were married at the home of the bride Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the presence of their immediate relatives and a few intimate friends, the Rev. Putnam Cady, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, performing the ceremony. The attendants were Miss Marion Longyear and Walter Lumpsee, the latter of New York city. Miss McKittick was given in marriage by her father and the ceremony took place under a white bell and smilax and palms. Mrs. Putnam Cady played the wedding march. The room was beautifully decorated with pink roses and smilax. The bride's dress was of Copenhagen blue georgette embroidered in cut steel beads, and she carried lilies of the valley and orchids. Miss Longyear's gown was of Copenhagen blue Canton crepe, embroidered in crystal beads and she carried orchids and pink sweet peas. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served. The gifts were numerous and valuable and included silver, linen and checks. The couple left by automobile for a brief honeymoon after which they will reside in New York city.

Warhop's Terms
Are Too High

Judge Harry E. Schirck of the Kingston Colonials on Saturday received a letter from Jack Warhop, the former Yankee twirler, who is in the season, but his terms for pitching for the Colonials are considered too high. Judge Schirck said today that he would send Warhop an offer and if he accepted he would be added to the pitching staff of the Colonials for the coming season.

Sunday School
League Results

Saturday night three games in the "Y" Sunday School League were played. Again a large crowd witnessed the contests.

In the first game the Fair Street Reformed quintet defeated the St. James M. E. five by a 23 to 13 score. Taylor was the scoring star for the St. James five, making 12 points. Wilbur and Shurter were scoring stars for the winners with 12 and 7 respectively. The score:

The second game was the fastest and most interesting game with the Trinity M. E. quintet again taking a leading part in the activities. The Trinity M. E. quintet, here-tofore undefeated league leaders. This victory for the Trinity five puts more interest in the league, there being a chance now for a triple tie. Both teams fought hard during the game, but the Trinity five took the lead in the second half and held it. Bailey and Smith made all of the 17 points for the winners, the first with 10 and the second with 7. Longyear was held to 3 points, but part of this was due to the hard luck he had on some shots. Whiston and Brownrigg scored 4 each. Bailey again dropped in some long fields. The score:

MME. LE BLANC CONDUCTS LOVE CLINIC.

Mme. Georgette LeBlanc, for seventeen years the wife of Maurice Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian poet, who divorced her for a younger woman, has opened a love clinic in New York City, and is shown here with two of her patients. She has devised a test which, she says, will determine real love from spurious.

"SOUL SAVING SHEBA" DEFIES LAW.

Miss Sheba Crawford, Atlanta, Ga., girl who was known in New York as the "Soul Saving Sheba" when, as a captain in the Salvation Army she attracted such throngs in the Gay White Way by her preaching that she was arrested, left the Salvation Army because of the attending publicity. But she seems to be meeting with the same difficulties in Florida she met in the North, for she already has clashed with the St. Petersburg, Fla., Fire Commission and Ministerial Association, having twice defied them when they tried to prevent her holding a revival there in an open tent.
